1. OWNERSHIP OF RIGHTS.

You hereby warrant that the Work is original and that you are the author of the Work; to the extent the Work incorporates text passages, figures, data or other material from the works of others, you have obtained any necessary permissions. See Retained Rights and other Terms and Conditions below.

(A). Please check the box below next to the applicable provision.

Check here if you hereby irrevocably assign to the PUBLISHER forever, as of the date of creation, all worldwide rights in the Work, including all United States and foreign copyrights (and extensions of them), and all other proprietary rights in the Work, including but not limited to the any revised or expanded derivative works and any associated written, audio and/or visual presentations or other enhancements accompanying the Work. You shall promptly sign and deliver to the PUBLISHER any instruments of transfer or other documents which the PUBLISHER may reasonably request to further effect and enforce the PUBLISHER’s ownership of the Work and you hereby irrevocably appoint the PUBLISHER as your attorney-in-fact to sign and deliver any of those documents that you fail or refuse to sign or deliver.

(Note: If you created the Work during the course of your employment or independent contractor agreement or received a grant to fund your Work, please review applicable company, institutional and grant policies and your employment/independent contractor agreement to determine if your employer or another third party owns or exclusively licenses some or all rights in your Work. If you do not own the rights in the Work, then the copyright owner should sign this agreement instead of you.)

Check here if you wrote the Work within the scope of your employment by the U.S. Government or the Work is otherwise in the public domain and the Work includes a copyright notice identifying those portions of the Work that are protected by copyright (if any) and those portions in the public domain.

(Note: If you are a United States federal employee who created the Work within the scope of your official duties, then the Work is in the public domain and you should check the second box above. If you are a U.S. federal employee who created the Work outside the scope of your employment, then you own the copyright in the Work despite your federal employee status and may check the first box above, unless you previously transferred these rights to another party, in which case that copyright owner should sign this agreement instead of you.)

(B). You also (i) grant the PUBLISHER the right to use your name, and your likeness and biographical information (if applicable) in connection with the Work , and (ii) waive all rights generally known as moral rights in the Work, to the extent they can be waived, under any existing or future law of any jurisdiction. 2. PERMITTED USES. Notwithstanding the transfer of rights described in Section 1(A) (if applicable), the PUBLISHER grants you, your successors and heirs a non-exclusive, worldwide, royalty-free right to: (A) reproduce, distribute, publicly display and publicly perform the Work or excerpts from it solely within your company or organization in print format or electronically via a restricted-access internal Web site (e.g., intranet or non-publicly-accessible LAN/WAN) available only to members of your company or organization (e.g., employees, staff, faculty and enrolled students and not to the general public, including alumni); and (B) create derivative works (but not translations) from the Work, provided appropriate credit is given to the Work's authors, sources and to the PUBLISHER as the Work's publisher. You may credit the PUBLISHER and the Journal of Nano Systems Technology (JNST) as the Work's first publisher only when exercising the rights set forth in Section 2(A) above with respect to the final the PUBLISHER's form of the Work (i.e., the Work must include the PUBLISHER's conference header, the Work's indentifying Number and the appropriate copyright notice). You may not deposit your Work in a publicly accessible archive (whether print or electronic) that permits users to copy and distribute its contents without first contacting the PUBLISHER for permission.

Author Responsibilities

The PUBLISHER distributes its technical publications throughout the world and wants to ensure that the material submitted to its publications is properly available to the readership of those publications. Authors must ensure that their Work is original and not plagiarized. You are advised especially that it is your responsibility, not the PUBLISHER's, to determine whether disclosure of your material requires the prior consent of other parties and, if so, to obtain it. Authors are also advised that statements and opinions given in Work published by the PUBLISHER are the expression of the authors.

General Terms

1. You represent that you have the power and authority to make and execute this assignment Agreement and to perform your obligations under this Agreement.
2. You agree to indemnify and hold harmless the PUBLISHER from any damage or expense that may arise in the event of a breach of any of the warranties set forth above.

4. You have the right to make the assignment of rights to the Publisher in Section 1(A) (if applicable), and if the Work contains excerpts from other copyrighted material (including without limitation any diagrams, photographs, figures or text), you have acquired in writing all necessary rights from third parties to include those materials in the Work, and have provided appropriate credit for that third-party material in footnotes or in a bibliography.
5. You represent that all statements contained in the Work purporting to be facts are true or supported by reasonable scientific research.
6. The Work does not contain any defamatory or libelous material and does not infringe any third party's copyright, patent, trade secret or other proprietary rights and does not violate the right of privacy or publicity of any third party or otherwise violate any other applicable law.

11. If the PUBLISHER decides to publish the Work, the PUBLISHER will provide appropriate credit to the author(s) of the Work in all copies of the Work in any format, but the PUBLISHER's failure to do so will not constitute a material breach of this Agreement. This Agreement, including all of the PUBLISHER's rights in your Work, terminates upon your receipt of that written notice, and you are thereafter free to offer the Work for publication elsewhere.
12. This Agreement is the entire agreement between you and the PUBLISHER and supersedes all prior or contemporaneous negotiations, understandings and representations, whether oral or written, between us concerning your Work. This Agreement may not be amended or modified except in a written instrument signed by you and the PUBLISHER. A waiver of any term or condition or breach of this Agreement must be in writing, and no such waiver constitutes a waiver of any other term or condition or of any later breach of this Agreement. INFORMATION FOR AUTHORS

PUBLISHER Copyright Ownership

It is the formal policy of the PUBLISHER to own the copyrights to all copyrightable material in its technical publications and to the individual contributions contained therein, in order to protect the interests of the PUBLISHER, its authors and their employers, and, at the same time, to facilitate the appropriate re-use of this material by others. It also abstracts and may translate its publications, and articles contained therein, for inclusion in various compendiums, collective works, databases and similar publications.

Author/Employer Rights

If you are employed and prepared the Work on a subject within the scope of your employment, the copyright in the Work belongs to your employer as a work-for-hire. In that case, the PUBLISHER assumes that when you sign this Form, you are authorized to do so by your employer and that your employer has consented to the transfer of copyright, to the representation and warranty of publication rights, and to all other terms and conditions of this Form. If such authorization and consent has not been given to you, an authorized representative of your employer should sign this Form as the Author.

Reprint/Republication Policy

The PUBLISHER requires that the consent of the first-named author and employer be sought as a condition to granting reprint or republication rights to others or for permitting use of a Work for promotion or marketing purposes.
